

Correction to Bleich 2006. Mountain Sheep in California: Perspectives on the Past, and Prospects for the Future

An article published in the 2006 Proceedings of the 15th Biennial Symposium of the Northern Wild Sheep and Goat Council contained an error. Please amend: Bleich, V. C. 2006. Mountain sheep in California: perspectives on the past, and prospects for the future. Biennial Symposium of the Northern Wild Sheep and Goat Council 15:1–13 as indicated below. The text on page 2, right column, very near the top should be corrected by deleting strikethrough text and adding underlined text as follows:

“Indeed, ~~Francisco Garcés~~ Frey Pedro Font, who chronicled the Anza expeditions of ~~Father Anza~~ as he they traveled north and west from what is now Arizona toward the Pacific coast of California, described dead and dying ~~mountain sheep~~ cattle in the Santa Rosa Mountains of southern California as early as ~~1776~~ 1775 (Bolton 1930).”

The author sincerely regrets the error.
